Frequently Asked Questions

01. What exactly is a product patent and why do I need one?

A product patent is a legal right granted by a government to an inventor, giving them exclusive rights to make, use, sell, and import their invention for a limited period, typically 20 years. You need one to protect your unique product from being copied or commercialized by others without your permission. It secures your market advantage, provides a basis for licensing, and can significantly increase the value of your business.

02. How long does the patent application process typically take?

The duration of the patent application process can vary significantly depending on the complexity of the invention, the volume of applications at the patent office, and how quickly office actions (communications from the patent examiner) are addressed. On average, from filing to grant, it can take anywhere from 2 to 5 years in India, sometimes longer. Our service aims to expedite this by ensuring your application is thorough and responsive from the outset.

03. What kind of information do I need to provide to start the patent process?

To begin, you'll need to provide a detailed description of your product, including how it works, what it does, and what makes it unique. Any drawings, sketches, prototypes, or technical specifications are extremely helpful. We'll also need information about your background as the inventor and any prior public disclosures or sales of the invention. The more information you provide, the better we can understand your invention and draft a strong patent application.
